How to get to Warsaw

Air - Warsaw Chopin Airport

Warsaw's main airport is well connected to the city centre, with 3 or 4 buses and trains an hour taking you to Warszawa Centralna (Central Station) in 30 minutes. You can get tickets from the blue machines, and a single will cost you 4.40 PLN. The easiest option if you're carrying luggage is by taxi. Look for cabs with a company name on the top (ELE Taxi, Sawa Taxi or Super Taxi) as there are many unlicensed ones which are best avoided. The trip to the centre costs around 40 PLN.

Air - Warsaw Modlin Airport

Modlin is Warsaw's second airport, for budget airlines. The easiest way into town is to take the green and purple ModlinBus, a journey which will take you straight to the Palace of Science & Culture in 40 minutes. Book online for the cut-price tickets or pay the full fare in the terminal. A cheaper option is to take a bus to Modlin train station, where an hourly train gets to Warszawa Centralna in around 40 minutes. You could also splash out 100 PLN on a licensed taxi.

Train

The inner-city train network is particularly useful when moving between Warsaw city centre and the outskirts. Many of the major landmarks have a station nearby, which vary significantly in upkeep and clarity of signage. The trains themselves are modern, with a green and yellow colour scheme, and run till 01:00 on most routes – an hour later than the trams. Travel tickets are valid across all forms of public transport and can be bought from newsagents or inside the stations.
