“The Sexual Health Hub (Sex4HH): The change in education of sexually transmitted diseases for Europe”

Dr. Francisco José García González

Complutense University of Madrid

Project idea

“To create a network of experts who advise and certify the detection of the behaviors of patients regarding sexually transmitted diseases”

- ✓ Analyze and create possible behavioral maps in three stages: Before, during and after of diagnostic.
- ✓ Detecting what leads the patient to take risks in your sexual health.
- ✓ Provide emotional management tools to deal with the situation of the diagnostic and its subsequent behavior.

Our Organization/Why this project?

The Complutense University of Madrid is an academic and public institution that has the collaboration of public medical research institutes and operates from Spain.

- ✓ To make the patient protagonist and responsible for their health. “Your health depends of you”
- ✓ Speed up the diagnostic and detection of this type of disease to prevent its spread
- ✓ There are new parameters in sexual education, like the gender diversity of the millennial generation and their smartphones, that must be analyzed.
